EDMONTON BULLETIN, JUNE 29, 1893.

ANOTHER STEP.
Four weeks ago the BULLETIN announced that material had been ordered to admit of a larger sheet being printed. After much delay the promise is made good with this issue. The enlargement is not merely for appearance, although that is a consideration. It is chiefly to give the space necessary to contain the news of the district as it has increased with the increase of population and to give advertisers the best possible value for their money. Although the size of the BULLETIN is very much greater now than formerly it will still be the object of the publisher to keep up the reputation for a well printed, well arranged newspaper and clean sheet which it has maintained for so long. While it is still one of the smallest in the Territories it is not so much smaller than the majority as to cause remark, and indeed considering that it is issued twice a week it is quite as large as most of the Northwest weeklies. The object in not making a greater enlargement at present is—on behalf of the publisher, to save the cost of the useless extra paper; on behalf of the reader to save him the trouble of going over columns of uninteresting matter which would have to be used to fill up with, when his object in reading the local paper is to get the local news; and on behalf of the advertiser to give him the full proportion of the advertising space of the paper for which he pays, not charging him an exorbitant price for space and then filling the adjoining columns with patent medicine and other like advertisements which detract from the appearance of the local business man's advertisement and yet do not pay a tenth part of the rate that he does. In all papers whose size is greater than their business actually warrants this practice is almost necessarily followed, to the detriment of the men who really support the paper, and who perhaps insisted most strongly on a large sheet, in order to create a good outside impression regarding the town or district. The BULLETIN does not depend on spread of paper to create an impression. Instead it proposes to bring both local and general news as nearly up to date as is customary with any daily paper and to present that news to its readers in neat readable form as frequently as the mails and business will permit. It hopes that its present enlargement will be accepted by its patrons as an acknowledgement of the appreciation which has been accorded its efforts along these lines in the past, and as an earnest of its intentions for the future.

THE NEW POST OFFICE.
The new building on Jasper avenue adjoining P. Ross' drug store which is being erected by W. S. Edmonstone to be occupied by the Edmonton post office, is being rapidly completed, the plastering being now in progress. Alex. Taylor postmaster is importing the interior fittings, which will comprise all the latest improvements for the sorting and quick delivery of mail. The office is entered by a handsome archway at the left or east corner of the front. The public part of the office takes in the whole front of the building and is 20x14. The entrance to the post master's private office is at the left directly in front of the main entrance. The registration and money order window is at the extreme right. The general delivery window is in the centre, as also the boxes which receive matter to be mailed. In the interior arrangement of the office the delivery window is flanked on both sides by the boxes for general letter delivery, while immediately in rear of the space occupied by the delivery clerk is a revolving case which will contain the newspapers for general delivery. On each side of the general delivery compartments are 40 call boxes, 20 in all, and flanking them again are 80 bronze lock boxes, 160 in all. The side there are 10 lock drawers. The inside office occupies 24x22 feet, and is fitted with shelves, counters, hooks, etc. to give every facility for sorting the mail. The interior fittings, including boxes will cost about $500. The site of the new post office will be much more central and convenient than the present one, which has become altogether inadequate for the transaction of the present post office business at this point.

Lethbridge News: Considerable complaint is being made by stockmen on this side of the boundary line of the police patrol on the boundary, driving their cattle across the line. The police, on being remonstrated with, did not deny doing it, but stated that they had orders to drive back all American cattle and as they had not horses to cut out the Canadian cattle they had to drive across all those mixed in with the American brands. In this way large numbers of Canadian cattle have been driven across and on the stockmen going after them they are not permitted to bring them back without complying with the quarantine regulations. Who is responsible for this state of affairs is now the question being asked.

Kamloops Sentinel: The late rains have made the mountain sides around Kamloops things of beauty, and one only needs climb to any of the many little plateaus that surround the town to see some of the grandest sights imaginable. One view, about a half-mile southwest of town is particularly grand, and turn in what direction one may, a beautiful scene meets one's gaze. To the north is the confluence of the north and south Thompson river, the two arms stretching out at nearly right angles into the distance through the verdant vales like silver threads in a ground work of polished emerald.

A meeting of the conservative leaders was held at Orangeville, Ontario, on June 1st. Ministers Foster, Wallace and Wood spoke. The attendance was interfered with by rain. Before the meeting the patrons of industry waited upon Foster. They asked that the law prohibiting combinations in restraint of trade be enforced, that it be made an indictable offence to form a combine to enhance the price of any article unduly; that duties be taken off articles consumed by the farming community; that the free pass system, whereby members place themselves under obligations to railway companies and then charge the country ten cents a mile for travelling expenses, be abolished, and that the civil service superannuation system be done away with. The ministers promised consideration.

McCarthy's gun has already brought down one coon merely by being pointed at him. R. S. White, proprietor of the Montreal Gazette and M. P. for Cardwell, Ontario, has intimated to his constituents. This is a direct result of McCarthy's Orangeville meeting—in Cardwell—at which he announced that an independent candidate would contest that constituency at next election. Mr. White it is said, will become collector of customs at Montreal, which will pay better than politics.

Free Press: The tariff will stand some cutting. Last year there were paid $50,000 in customs dues on $100,000 worth of cast iron pipe, $94,000 on $270,000 worth of umbrellas, $250,000 on $783,000 worth of tweed, $563,000 on $1,715,000 worth of woolen cloths, and $405,000 on $471,000 worth of coal oil, naphtha, etc. The rate of duty on these articles varies from over 30 to nearly 90 per cent.

When about a dozen students are breaking down physically, under the strain of the examinations in the provincial university, our provincial legislators, a few yards distant, were considering a bill for the protection of muskrats and other fur-bearing animals.—Canada Presbyterian.

A meeting of 1,500 people in Woodstock, Ontario, on May 30th endorsed Dalton McCarthy and his platform.
